A JUROR'S ILLNESS

Results In Mistrial of Case
Against Former Stonington Tax Collector

Illness of a juror hearing the case of State against Robert McGuffie, tax collector at Stonington for the year 1930, 1931 and 1932, charged with the misappropriation of $3500 of the town's tax money, resulted in a motion for a mistrial being granted in Hancock County Superior court Tuesday.

The juror taken ill was Lewis Bowden of Bar Harbor. He was stricken Monday night and was rushed to the Mt. Desert Island hospital where he was operated upon for relief of appendicitis.

At the opening of court Tuesday morning H. L. Graham of Bar Harbor, who with C. J. Hurley of Ellsworth, represented McGuffie, moved for a mistrial on the ground that the case should be heard by 12 men and Justice Hudson granted the motion. The respondent was released on bail and the case will come up for trial later.

George Noyes, first selectman of Stonington, brought out in his testimony Monday when questioned by County Attorney Clarke as to tax matter, that it was in February when he first noticed irregularity in 1933, that at that time they were getting ready to make an annual report, and it was necessary to make a balance sheet to find out how many outstanding taxes there were. Noyes said that when he questioned McGuffie he said there was $2500 for 1932 and $900 for 1931. Noyes testified he said "You must have quite a lot on money on hand, seven or eight thousand dollars" and that McGuffie said "I have a considerable amount but have not figured it as yet." This resulted in an investigation, a state auditor from Augusta making an audit of the town books.

The contention of the defense, as outlined by Attorney Hurley, is that no shortage existed in the town's tax collections but that if there was a shortage it was the result of errors in bookkeeping.

GOING TO CHINA

Eugene Rich of Camden To Be Associated With Importing House

Eugene Rich, one of Camden's best known young men, expects to leave with his family the first of the year for Hong Kong, China where they will make their home.

Mr. Rich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Rich of New York, has for a number of years supervised Richmond Farm on the Hope road. He has disposed of his interests and will be associated with a long established and importing house in Hong Kong.

Mrs. Rich was formerly Miss Frances Flanagan of this city. They have one daughter, Patricia.

FREE BY INSANITY

A directed verdict of "not guilty by reason of insanity" freed Norman Moore, former carnival wrestler, of an arson charge resulting from a $150,000 fire in Ellsworth last May 7. Superior Court Judge Hudson signed an order committing Moore to the state hospital at Bangor.

HIGH SCHOOL DRESSES

Camden Students Among Those Who Have Modeled Suitable Ones

Eighteen High School girls in Dover, Camden, and Guilford recently modeled in dresses suitable for school, for social activities, and the out of doors reports Helen Spaulding, clothing specialist for the Extension Service. The common fault of nearly everyone, she said, was their failure to stand "tall." Quoting Miss Spaulding she said, "The High School girl who selects her shoes carefully, choosing those with rather low broad heels, roomy toes shaped so that the great toe is not bent at an angle with the rest of the foot has taken the first step toward graceful carriage. She has comfortable flexible feet. She needs next to see that her chest is kept high and her shoulders down and flat. She can train herself to this posture by walking with a book on her head five minutes each day."

An easy exercise to emphasize the correct relation of chest and shoulders to the rest of the body also strengthens the muscles of chest and shoulders. It consists of lying flat on the floor with the hollow in the back as near to touching the floor as possible and with the chest expanded. The arms are at the sides. After assuming this position, bring the right arm up and over until it extends straight out beyond the head. Alternate this with the left arm, the arms passing each other when extended upward at right angles to the trunk."

THE EASTERN'S PLANS

Steamer Belfast Will Make Last Trip Oct. 28—Comes Then the Cornish

The three-trips-a-week passenger and freight service on the Boston and Bangor division of the Eastern Steamship Lines will end for the season of 1933, Oct. 28, with the sailing from this port for Boston of the steamer Belfast which has been performing this service since the summer schedule ended.

The winter freight schedule on the division will go into effect, Oct. 30, with the sailing from Boston of the steam freighter Cornish, which will make two trips a week, leaving Boston Mondays and Thursdays and sailing from Rockland Wednesdays and Saturdays. The Cornish will arrive here Tuesday and Fridays, and sailing the following forenoon.

The steamer Belfast had a big freight on her arrival from Boston Tuesday, and carried a good freight and a number of passengers on her return trip in the afternoon.

NOTABLE MUSIC EVENT

Adelbert Wells Sprague, president of the Eastern Maine Festival Association, has announced that the Don Cossack Russian Male Chorus is to be presented at the Bangor Music Festival, Wednesday, Oct. 25.

Not since the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra was presented in concert in that city has a more notable musical event been booked for Maine. Many Rockland music lovers are already planning to attend and hear this chorus which has been a sensation in the musical world. They came to this country first in 1930-31, filling 38 engagements in 42 days including repeated performances in New York.

STRAND THEATRE

Ann Harding and William Powell come Monday with a notable supporting cast in "Double Harness" A spiky ultra-modern comedy drama. "Double Harness" presents Miss Harding as a Twentieth Century maiden who believes marriage must be approached in a practical manner. Consequently she arranges a ruse to engulf Powell, man-about-town, into the sea of matrimony. The wedding bells ring off but when the debutant groom learns he was tricked into marrying the girl, complications ensue, endangering their individual happiness and inspiring Miss Harding to new tricks to hold her man.

Except for a few scenes, Warren William, as the woman pursued author of best sellers in the First National comedy, "Goodbye Again," showing Tuesday, is never fully dressed from the beginning of the picture to its side-splitting finale. Joan Blondell has the role of Anne in "Goodbye Again." Genevieve Toyn is the languishing married college friend who is ready to leave her degenerate husband for her old campus flame, now that he has become famous.—adv.

MILES RESIGNS

An Augusta Associated Press dispatch announces the resignation of Albert L. Miles, as recorder of Rockland Municipal Court—as had already been stated in The Courier-Gazette. The dispatch says that Mr. Miles gave no reason for resigning, but it was done for the obvious reason that he and his family are now located in Portland. It has been quite generally considered that Recorder Miles' successor would be Ensign Otis, who was a candidate for the Municipal judgeship when Z. M. Durnal was appointed to that position.

STANDISH PERRY OF CAMDEN

Entertained Rockland Rotarians With a Story of His Travels Abroad

Standish Perry of the Camden Rotary had right of way at yesterday's weekly luncheon entertainment period of the Rockland Club, into which he packed a story of foreign travel whose details might well have been lengthened beyond the official half-hour and held his listeners equally interested. Mr. Perry's narrative dealt more particularly with the visit made by himself and family to the romantic regions of Italy, in which were encountered its chief cities, as well as Mussolini, with a dose of home color thrown in by a Rome Buffum, the vice consul at Palermo and Capt. Charles Kalch who headquarters are at Genoa.

With an eye for color and romance, and a sense of humor in the difficult task of sight-seeing which finds its demonstration in uttered speech, Mr. Perry is an entertaining chap, and his narrative of ocean voyaging and things encountered in the varied channels of travel ashore gave to his listeners yesterday much pleasure, which they interpreted through a salvo of applause and many personal expressions of appreciation.

ROBADOR IS SOLD

Robert Law Yacht Now the Property of E. L. Cord, Auto Manufacturer

The purchase of the palatial 184-foot German-built pleasure yacht formerly owned by James A. Talbot, convicted former Richfield Oil Company executive, by E. L. Cord, millionaire automobile manufacturer and airplane line operator, was revealed in news dispatches from New York.

The yacht Robador was built in 1929 to Talbot's order in Germany and was fitted out in such luxurious manner that it was known as the last word in pleasure craft. The yacht occupied a central position in Talbot's trial which resulted in his conviction last year and his sentence to San Quentin.

The Robador, purchased after Talbot's downfall by the late Robert Law, chairman of the board of the Barnstable Corporation, has been on the Atlantic coast for the past year and recently in Florida. The sale was arranged through a Los Angeles yacht broker and Cord will take possession of the yacht in Florida.

The craft is 184 feet, 6 inches long, develops 1100 horsepower and has a cruising radius of 7000 miles. It has six staterooms, six bathrooms, a library, dining-room and a kitchen. Twenty-three men are required for its crew.

Cord's plans for operation of the craft were not made public, but it is believed he might bring the yacht to California waters. During Law's ownership of the boat, the Robador was placed under the Panama registry, but it is believed Cord will transfer the registry to New York.

The above article from the Los Angeles Times, will be read with much local interest because of the fact that the yacht had been in local waters. The odd name is a combination of Robert, the father, and Theodore, the youngest son.

PAYING THE HOSPITAL

Some of us continue to be in debt to the Knox Hospital, meaning to pay but finding ourselves short of money. Perhaps some of us have vegetables that could be applied to the debt. The hospital can always make use of such articles and will be glad to credit them on a patient's bill at market prices.

STARTS NEW COURSE

Accredited Bible Study At the Universalist Church—"The Achievement"

The first course in accredited Bible study in this city has been undertaken by Rev. George H. Welch at the Universalist church school, and is already attracting no small interest, with probably other of the local churches falling in line.

The course is called "The Achievement of the Master," by H. R. Purinton, professor of Biblical Literature and Religion, formerly of Bates College, and Sadie Brackett Costello. Other courses to be taken are "The Literature of the Old Testament," "The Achievement of Israel" and "The Literature of the New Testament," all by Prof. Purinton. Each course requires one period per week for at least the length of time of the High School year. The period is 40 minutes.

Each course satisfactorily completed grants the student one fourth of a credit, the four courses meaning one whole credit which may or may not be used for credits in High School. Such credits are accepted for college entrance credits in Maine colleges.

Control over these courses is vested in a State Board of Control, this board making out the examination questions and passing upon the results. Such examinations are given twice a year, the last Sunday in January and the first Sunday of June.

"The Achievement of the Master" follows mainly the Gospel of Mark and centers around the question "What did Jesus do that has given him such a lofty position in the world? In what way has he made the world better?" This consideration of the noblest character that has ever appeared in the course of human history is the best means known to teachers of instilling high ideals into the minds of youth.

SUPT. LORD NAMED

Camden Man on National Committee Which Will Finance Public Education

Paul C. Stetson superintendent of schools in Indianapolis, and president of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association, announced at Association headquarters in Washington, D. C., that he had been appointed a member of a national committee on financing public education. This committee will meet and report at the Cleveland convention of the Department of Superintendence, Feb. 24-March 1, 1934.

The appointment of this committee is an important item in a fundamental reorganization of the convention plan followed by the educational leaders in their national professional organization for many years. The change was made to extend greater responsibility to individual members in the Department's attempt to plan more effectively for meeting the current crisis in education.

Seven such committees have been appointed by President Stetson. These groups will give their attention respectively to problems of teacher training, a comprehensive program of public education, financing the schools, education for the new America, public education and public welfare, a national outlook on education, and the interpretation of the schools to the public.

WHEN THE GLASS BREAKS

If we were going to humor our ambition to the extent of setting up a new car, our first inclination of the salesman would bear reference to the glass of it. "Is it"—such would be our query, with an air implying knowledge of the automotive subject out of all proportion to the fact—"is it equipped with non-shatterable glass?" And if his answer lay in the negative, he would find it utterly useless to proceed further with his selling campaign. Why is not every car furnished with this protective form of glass? Why are there not laws laying compulsion upon manufacturers to make use of it? True its use is increasing, but it should be made universal. The thought of it seizes upon you almost daily as you read the story of accidents and the part played by the shattered glass in bringing death to the passengers, or what is quite as bad, the cruel disfigurement which must be carried through life.

MAKING IT UNANIMOUS

Something of the spirit of cooperation in which the business houses of Rockland have pledged themselves to the support of the National Recovery Act shows forth upon other pages of this paper. It is an impressive muster-roll of the patriotic citizens who have pledged themselves to a loyal support of these policies which have for their desired goal the business and social rehabilitation of the country. It makes a printed record that in later years will be referred to with justifiable pride.

CUTTING ACROSS LOTS

Cenealed in the human breast is an urge to cut across lots. Largely masculine, its greatest exercise is found among the juvenile, though the mature mind on occasion yields to it. There was a time in its earlier days when our city's home places found themselves shut off from the wandering populace by fences, an excellent medium of protection and in many cases not wanting in phases of architectural adornment. These in the flight of years have gradually been done away with. The beautifying of lawns growingly came into vogue and along with it went a feeling of neighborliness, which regarded the fence as an implication that you wished to separate yourself from contact with fellow-citizens. High hatching. So the fences were torn down. Now something is needed to take their place. A public spirit, let us say, which shall regard the private grounds as a thing to be kept off. If the youth, through some process of education, could be brought to practice this form of respect, in a little while we'd grow a population that would look upon the act of trespass as a thing impossible to be condoned.

THE WOMEN TO HELP

The movement being set on foot to incorporate in the active affairs of our local hospital a Woman's Auxiliary we shall look to see meet with generous response. There can be nothing suggested of more immediate value to the future of this indispensable adjunct to the public and private life of this whole coast region, than an interested group of women lending to it the active cooperation of their sympathy and support. Such an Auxiliary can confidently reckon upon membership help from every part of the county whose name the hospital carries and every citizen of whom its splendid staff and equipment are hourly set to serve. Let us welcome the Woman's Auxiliary of Knox County General Hospital and cast our hats in the air.

WHO READS TROLLOPE?

We are gratified to learn that the distinguished French writer, Hilaire Belloc, pays tribute to that English writer of the Victorian period, Anthony Trollope, in whom, he says, is summed up "the picture of that England which once was and of which many of my age can remember the still rigorous end." We will hazard a guess that only a limited number of the readers of this paper have acquaintance with the Trollope novels, long outmoded; but Mr. Belloc adds his opinion to that of others competent to judge, that for a true picture of the time in which the novels are cast he is the one writer whose works are most to be depended upon. After a period of partial eclipse Anthony Trollope, they tell us, is resuming his place as a master of English fiction. This should invite the newer readers of today, and send back to their consideration those of us who recall the satisfaction we took out of his stories in the early years of their vogue. They can be had at our Public Library.

NOTICING

Have any of this paper's readers, gifted with the noticing faculty, noticed—

THAT another arcanum in which woman shines is in seeing that her husband occasionally equips himself with a fresh handkerchief.

THAT however much a natural modesty prevents your being a party to getting "your name in the paper," you confess to yourself a secret pleasure in seeing it there.

THAT it seems to be the prerogative of the boy to say the more or less humorous things and for the girl to snicker at them, an inequality in life which the emancipation of woman through the instrumentality of the ballot hasn't yet adjusted.

THAT you've often wondered, if you alighted upon the doctor's direction to take the medicine before a meal, and you took it after, what really would happen to you.

THAT the picture card sent years ago from Europe by a friend who wished you were there, yesterday fell out of another book, and you wanted to destroy it, but couldn't seem to.

THAT the glory of the autumn foliage around Camden Turnpike is a sight to call a long distance for visitation.

THAT you kicked like a steer at being laid off active work on account of years, but now you're accustomed to it you find you never were so comfortable before in all your life.

THAT when Shakespeare comes to a town like ours and you omit to give him at least the once over you make a great mistake.

THAT white hens appear to be growing in favor and you wonder if it's because white eggs bring a higher price in city markets.

THAT the getting in of belated hay was one of the pictures noted this week on the Thomaston road.

THAT the funny old-fashioned "splitting image," as you used to hear it called, straightens itself out if you look up "split" in your dictionary.

THAT the improvement gradually wrought in the appearance of Sea View Cemetery pays tribute to the form of public spirit which has brought that condition to pass.

THAT you wonder if that ancient West Indian sweet, the tamarind—you called it in the vernacular tamar—once popular as a table delicacy is nowadays anywhere to be found.

THAT Nature herself has now taken over the much discussed problem of roadside beautifying at which piece of public ornamentation she has the rest of us skum endless miles.

THAT your shoes seemed to look good enough until you sat in for a professional shine, and then you confess that they didn't.

THAT the flocks of dark-hued pigeons one time a familiar sight in Main street are no longer a feature in that automotive infested thoroughfare.

THAT when October comes round, anniversary month of the old Maine Festival, you recall how, inspired, you each year sang under the baton of William Rogers Chapman the music of immortal composers, and you wish those happy days might come again.

PIANO FOR WATTS HALL

Church of St. John Baptist Sponsoring Entertainment To That End

On Oct. 13 a reading and recital will be given in Watts hall, Thomaston, under the direction of Adeline Bushnell and sponsorship of the Church of St. John Baptist, the chief features of which will be the reading of "The Happy Prince," by Miss Bushnell; also a reading by Miss Florence Dean.

An unique feature connected with this recital is that in order to procure a proper piano for concerts in Thomaston, and finding much enthusiasm over the possibility of securing one, the Church of St. John Baptist is turning half the net proceeds toward such an instrument anticipating that later productions given in Watts hall will contribute toward this common need. Tickets at a very moderate price will be on sale at MacDonald's Drug Store and other points to be announced later.

A BIG CODFISH

Curtis M. Sausbury, noted negro singer will be at the First Baptist Church at 7:15 Tuesday evening. His rendition of negro spirituals and sacred songs is a delight to lovers of music. Some of his numbers will be: "In my heart," "Boatman," "Balm of Gilead," "Burleigh," "A little talk with Jesus," "Johnson," "Peter go ring them bells," "Johnson" and "My way is cloudy." Burleigh. The public is invited, and an offering will be taken for the singer.

SEES AN IMPROVEMENT

Optimistic View Of President Wyman As He Mails Dividend To the Stockholders

When President Wyman of the Central Maine recently sent to the stockholders the 108th consecutive dividend, he added the following interesting information:

Since your July dividend was mailed the special election on the initiative of the New England Public Service Company now that it is definitely disconnected from the Insull organization. New England Public Service Company has been industriously developing its own situation during the last twelve months. It is in a strong position financially, having practically no debts, and owns and controls a very large amount of valuable property. It has added a number of influential men to its board of directors, and some valuable men to its organization. It will continue to give aid and support to its operating companies whenever they need it. I think you can rest assured that the affairs of your Company will be kept in hand and carefully managed.

The National Recovery Act has been going into effect during the past three months. It has accomplished a great deal already in providing more business for industries, in increasing payrolls and providing more jobs, and in a general way, cheering up a lot of people who had been discouraged so long that they had almost come to lose faith in ever seeing any turn of things for the better. There are still a lot of doubts expressed, a lot of people who are pessimistic about the Blue Eagle and who go about asking whether the NRA will succeed or not. To my mind, the NRA is succeeding. It is stimulating business and the only question is whether it can keep on succeeding as well as it already has. That depends on you and me and all the rest of the people in the United States. All of us together can make it succeed or we can let it fail. I believe that if we have any duty as American citizens, it is to do our utmost to make this great move for the National organization of business and for better distribution of agricultural and manufacturing products, achieve an outstanding success. Failure means going back to the spectacle of starving people surrounded by warehouses bursting with food, and of people freezing to death with ample supplies of clothing and fuel only awaiting labor to make them available.

The cotton textile was the first industry in the country to file its code under the NRA and consequently, the first to feel the effects of the code. Large orders are being placed and many mills are contracting for goods which will keep them running full, eighty hours per week, for the remainder of the year.

Most other industries filed their code considerably later than the cotton textile group and are just now feeling the lull which followed the rush of orders that came just prior to the approval of their codes. I believe, however, that these, in their turn, will soon begin to get much more business than they did before the codes were adopted.

During the past few months we have heard quite a few people express wonder as to what was going to become of the New England Public Service Company now that it is definitely disconnected from the Insull organization. New England Public Service Company has been industriously developing its own situation during the last twelve months. It is in a strong position financially, having practically no debts, and owns and controls a very large amount of valuable property. It has added a number of influential men to its board of directors, and some valuable men to its organization. It will continue to give aid and support to its operating companies whenever they need it. I think you can rest assured that the affairs of your Company will be kept in hand and carefully managed.

During these trying times the Company has been glad to assist its customers by the extension of credit which resulted in an abnormal increase in accounts receivable. We are busy effecting economies to make room for the Federal 3% tax which has been shifted from the customer to the Company. We hope very much that this can be carried without asking for any increase in rates, and shall only do that as a last resort.

While we have had a very large increase in output of kilowatt hours during the summer this increase has been nearly all in low priced kilowatt hours, said at wholesale. Retail consumption is just beginning to increase.

We are making a careful study of rates, seeking ways in which we can encourage the retail customer to use more electricity, to his advantage and to ours. Central Maine Power Company is largely a cooperative business. Twenty thousand of the citizens of Maine own preferred stock in the Company and a great many of these are customers for the current which it sells.

For the past month or so our earnings are running well ahead of the corresponding months of last year and I think you will see a steady improvement in the 12 months statements as they become affected less and less by the lean months in the early part of 1933.

Tenants Harbor Days

"The tumult and the shouting dies, The Captains and the Kings depart," wrote our former Wild Cat pupil in Elmer Allen's Chat. And Elmer digs up "Town Talk" of 1886 and tells a waiting word of the doings of other days. About that animal of gigantic proportions that was roaming in Turkey woods in 1886. That year I was in Houlton, where animals of gigantic proportions were common, moose, caribou, deer, bear, etc.

I remember when a boy there was a scare about a bear that several persons had seen, which turned out to be a large Newfoundland dog, a dog common in those days.

Of "Ino" the coach dog, this is the dialogue between Frank Long and the dog's owner, Frank—"What's the dog's name, Willie?" Willie—"Ino." Frank—"If you know, why the dickens don't you tell me."

I remember "Ino," but as I never hunted rabbits I did not know of that accomplishment.

Let us go back of '86 and see what was doing in 1883. The summer was very dry, wells all dried up. September 4. Dad's diary reads: Clear and cooler, heavy frost last night, ground while this morning. Sabbath schools from the upper and lower parts of the town were present at a picnic here today. Five ministers present—Revs. Bicknell, Rockland, J. M. Kallioch, Hill, Mathews and Vinal. The little folks had a good time, the big folks also.

Sept. 10. No signs of rain as yet. We get most of our water from Capt. Hays out of the cistern.

Sept. 11. Overcast again tonight; has been a circle around the moon for three nights (All signs fail in a dry spell).

Sept. 12. Clear and warm all day. Light air easterly.

Sept. 13 to 18 gave rain and fog each day.

Sept. 22. Easterly and very smoky. Big fire on Mt. Desert, Bar Harbor village on fire.

Sept. 24. Dry my potatoes this morning, very smoky.

Sept. 25. Overcast, this morning, quite a quantity fell in the night. So the summer of 1883 was a dry summer.

A PASTOR'S THANKS

Rev. W. J. Day Profoundly Moved By Events On 20th Anniversary In Winthrop

The recent celebration by our church of the pastor's twentieth anniversary is an event which is most meaningful to myself and Mrs. Day, and will be memorable throughout our life.

It is rarely that an event of this nature is carried out under more favorable circumstances as to weather and completeness of program, than was this. It was purely a church family affair, and the simplicity of the whole procedure was a marked characteristic. Perhaps this simplicity and informality was the secret of the issue, at least was a material factor therein.

The pastor wishes to express for himself and Mrs. Day, their gratitude for, and deep appreciation of the honors bestowed, and the benefits received through this anniversary occasion; and to voice our thanks to all who had a part in inaugurating, contributing to, and bringing it to such a successful conclusion. I need not stop to individualize in this particular. "All" means everybody.

The outstanding feature in this celebration is, to us, not the check presented, although we do not make light of that. But it is the spirit, which it has been made known to us has pervaded and permeated this whole affair from the beginning to the end—a spirit of willingness, of gladness, of even eagerness to put this event across in a worthy way. Rather would we part with the material gift, than miss this factor in the occasion. For without such a spirit—a spirit which the community in charge has voiced to me again and again with great gladness—this affair would be without real heart and soul.

As it is stands out among all your gracious dealings with us as a masterpiece of Christian love, fellowship and good-will.

[Rev. W. J. Day

THE BAPTIST YEAR

The First Church Prospers In This Opening Period of Its Second Century

The annual meeting of the First Baptist Church Thursday evening despite the heavy rain saw large attendance upon the supper which preceded the business session, over which the pastor, Rev. Mr. MacDonald, presided. The reports of the several officials and committee chairmen disclosed a year of continued activity on the part of the church members, with the finances in encouraging condition, both in the home department and that of missions. The combined reports suggested a gratifying state of things in this the first year of the church's second century (it was founded Feb. 2, 1833). SERMONETTE

The Prayer of Wisdom

The Lord appeared unto Solomon in a dream in the night and God said, "Ask what I shall give thee." Solomon said in his prayer, "Thou hast showed unto thy servant David, my father, great mercy, according as he walked before thee in truth, in righteousness, and uprightness of heart; and thou hast given him a son to sit on his throne; and now, O Lord my God, thou hast made thy servant king instead of David my father, and I am as a little child, and thy servant is in the midst of thy chosen people. A great people, that cannot be numbered, nor counted for multitude. Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart, that I may discern between good and bad, and be able to judge so great a people."

And God said, "Because thou hast asked this thing, and hast not asked for thyself long life, neither has asked riches for thyself, nor the life of thine enemies, behold, I have given thee a wise and understanding heart such as never preceded or will follow thee; and thou shalt be as the man which thou hast not asked, both honor and riches, and, if thou wilt walk in my way, I will lengthen thy days."

William A. Holman.

Mrs. Morse served a chicken dinner, and the table was prettily decorated with autumn flowers and birthday cakes, and there were favors for the guests. It was planned to pass the day in a quiet way but at about 7:30, stepping out at the door Mr. Morse was surprised to meet 16 or more of his friends from Friendship, all dressed in costumes of various style, and just ready to step in. Anyone who knows Mr. Morse can readily imagine the welcome they received. The evening was passed merrily and socially, and Mrs. Morse served refreshments assisted by Miss Eda Lawry. As the guests departed each received a joke favor, and best wishes and congratulations were bestowed upon their hosts.

GOD'S LIGHTHOUSES

When night falls on the earth, the sea from east to west lit twinkling light With shining beams from beacons high Which flash afar a friendly light.

The sailor's eyes, like eyes in prayer, Turn unto them for guiding ray: It seems obscure, but that's the light, The great ships helpless grope their way.

When night falls on the earth, the sky Looks like a wide, a boundless main, Who knows what vapors sail there? Who names the ports they seek and gain?

Are not the stars like beacons set To guide the argosies that go From universe to universe, Our little world above, below?

On their great errands solemn bent, In their vast journeys unaware Of our small planet's name or place Revolving in the lower air.

O thought too vast! O thought too glad! An awe most rapturous it stirs, From world to world God's beacons shine, God means to save his mariners!—Helen Hunt Jackson.

WE DO OUR PART

LET'S ALL DO OUR PART

Rockland merchants have signed the President's pledge and are supporting the NRA program.

In order to do their part, it is necessary that they receive the buying and paying support of every customer.

It is not enough to have the merchants alone say, "We Do Our Part." Let's ALL do OUR part.

Your way to help, is by paying your bills promptly. If you cannot pay it all—pay some. Every dollar helps them to fulfill their pledge to the government, and you should fulfill your pledge by paying when you say you will.

Don't hoard your credit. Use it, and pay all bills by the tenth or as agreed.

In an effort to promote the NRA program in this immediate area, to aid the NRA merchants and to acquaint the public with the identity of member merchants The Courier-Gazette offers this Directory, open to all NRA merchants, and charged for at only a fraction of the regular advertising rates.

This is a partial NRA list. Other names will be added as requests are received.

OUR BOOK CORNER

Dublin has long been a centre of culture and learning. From the days of Dean Swift the city has never been without important literary figures. Around the beginning of the present century, an unusual amount of literary talent appeared in and around Dublin, and more has developed since. Of the distinguished group George Moore, G. W. Russell, W. B. Yeats, J. M. Synge, James Joyce, Lady Gregory and Lord Dunsany are the best known, though there were and are others almost or quite as important. All of these wrote in English, but the city is also the centre for those who are interested in the revival of Irish as a living tongue. There is an old saying that the "most beautiful English spoken anywhere is spoken in Dublin." The Abbey Theatre, one of the first experimental theatres, is famous.

Noted from the new catalogue of the Oxford University Press is "The Indian in American Literature," by Albert Kiefer. This describes the first time the highly significant part of the red man has played in the literature of our country. On the basis of a first hand study of all the material and a thorough knowledge of the native, the author shows us the real and the romantic Indian as a major figure from the Pocahontas legend to the struggle for the bison pastures of the plains. Cooper's most vital prose fiction is discussed in an illuminating fashion. There are also chapters devoted to Freneau and Simms, Irving and Thoreau, Joaquin Miller and Hamlin Garland. And among others, the stage Indian as well as the Cliff Dwellers again come to life. It comes from the press this month.

Also from Oxford press has just come "Northern Lights" by F. Spencer Chapman, with a foreword by Admiral Richard E. Byrd. This is the official account of the British Expedition to the Arctic under the young Cambridge explorer, H. G. Watkins, who met a tragic death in Greenland. One critic has said: "This book is a book that should be read by every one with any sense at all of the romance and adventure of human life, and of the slow, painful, indomitable rise of man from the cave up towards the stars."

O. O. McIntyre is motoring through New England, and here is what he has to say about Gloucester: "The most famous spot hereabouts is Norman's Woe, the deadly reef setting for Longfellow's 'The Wreck of the Hesperus.' We motored out along the appropriately named Hesperus avenue as the sun blared into a dull red evening glow that is the fisherman's delight. It seemed incredible that this rock, not more than 200 feet long, jutting out of the sea, doomed so many mariners. All about were far more pretentious projections."

On a bench hewn of rough logs and cupped in a rocky outcrop at Magnolia we had a poetical view of Rafe's Chasm and Norman's Woe. Only my wife could recall the lines. As she recited them, and I'll wager they are correct, they ran:

"Such is the wreck of the Hesperus In the midnight and the snow; God save us all from a death like this On the reef of Norman's Woe!"

Henry Dwight Sedgwick, in his latest book "The Art of Happiness," told the press (Bobbie-Merrill Co.) Sept. 15, gives his ideas of what constitutes a classic breakfast, a romantic breakfast, a realistic, and an idealistic breakfast.

The romantic breakfast: A pewter egg, two slices of toast in a silver rack, coffee, hot milk in porcelain vessels, cream and sugar in little silver pots, an orange on a plate with a silver knife beside it, all measured, all harmonious, restrained, a Doric simplicity prevailing.

The realistic breakfast: A pewter cover, beneath it griddle cakes with bacon, a second pewter cover, beneath it buckwheat cakes, coffee in a percolator, hot milk, cream, sugar, buttered muffin, a dish of fruits, pomegranates, persimmons, grapes.

The idealistic breakfast: (Such as Strindberg sat down to): Cold toast, a fly in the honey, capillary filament in the butter, an egg in the coffee pot, sniffing at, chugging in the coffee pot, a green apple, and such other accessories of the realist delights in.

The idealist breakfast, (which never exists in actual life but is concocted by hope out of ingredients from memory): The toast is almost too hot to hold and the color from ochre to amber and on the crust is Rembrandt gold, the boiled egg is a conical and trembles at the touch of the spoon, the marmalade is a composite of oranges, orange blossoms and Valencian sun, the coffee has been used to drink, and the slice of melon fetched from the show-window of Charlie's shop.

"No Second Spring" by Janet Beith, which was awarded the Stokes prize of $20,000 recently, is outstanding on library lists the past week. This novel was the unanimous choice of the judges. It is a story of early 19th century Scotland.

Still heading the list for best sellers is "Anthony Adverse" by Hervey Allen. And here is a suggestion, if any one wishes to materially aid our public library, please get "Anthony Adverse" from its rental library. It has 500 pages of reading matter that defies rapid reading, yet is intensely interesting from start to finish. The best-seller in the non-fiction list for the past week was Stefan Zweig's "Marie Antoinette."

Millard Howard Watts. This community was saddened by the death of Millard Howard, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Watts. He was born in 1925, and was two months and four weeks ago he was taken to Huntington Memorial Hospital in Massachusetts for treatment. But with the best of medical aid and loving care, nothing could save his sweet young life, and on Sunday morning, Sept. 20, he passed peacefully away after bidding his loved ones good bye, saying he was going to heaven to be with Jesus.

Millard was born in Jefferson eleven years ago, and was a very bright, intelligent little fellow with a mind much older than his equal for one of his years. Possessed of a sweet and amiable disposition, he loved every one, and every one loved him. He was a member of the Sunday School and in the sixth grade at school.

The bearers were four young friends of the deceased, Warren Reynolds, James McDevoted, Robert Mitchell and Theodore Mitchell, and interment was in Lakeview cemetery. The floral tributes were many and beautiful. The Woman's Educational Club met Monday at the home of Mrs. Lena Merrill, Rankin street and were received in her usual pleasant manner. A social afternoon was followed by a picnic supper. Mrs. E. C. Moran, wife of Representative Moran, and a member of the Club, gave an informal talk on "Women in Politics."

Some of the women mentioned were Ruth Bryan Owen, who has been appointed minister to Denmark (the first woman to hold such a position) Frances Perkins, in private life Mrs. Paul C. Wilson, first woman to be made a cabinet officer; Nellie Taylor Ross first woman governor of Wyoming; Mrs. Garner, wife of the Vice President, a quiet, unassuming person; and Mrs. Roosevelt, who is much better looking than her pictures represent. Mrs. Moran also spoke of social customs changing with the trend of the times.

MEASUREMENTS

[For The Courier-Gazette]
Do you know just how to be saucy?
Do you know how to talk and pout and grouch
Do you know how to talk and pout and grouch

Do you know just how to be bossy
And rule with an iron hand?
And have no pity for the poor and weak
But only the best demand?

Then, though you are wise in your own conceit,
You yet have a lot to learn:
I may be funny but will bet all my money
You have no education at all.

Do you know just how to be kind
And smile on the poor and weak?
Be gentle and understanding
And humbly for wisdom seek?

Do you know how to give alms to the poor
From your slender stock of wealth,
And love mankind in charity,
In sickness as in health?

Then, though you make no claims to knowledge,
And are dull in wit and lore,
I'll say that you are the salt of the earth
And have wisdom and knowledge galore.

Appleton. Mary Gushue Ames.

GUARDIANS OF OUR COAST

What our lightkeepers and coast guardsmen are doing to protect coastwise shipping by day and by night. The day's news from many lonely outposts along Maine's waterfront.

Little River

We have not been writing lately. Have been waiting for something to write about.

Canning, digging potatoes and gathering garden produce from our place ashore have kept us pretty busy.

The last of August we lost a fine cow by falling off a high cliff here on the island. We did not know about it until Mr. Corbett saw her drifting out of the harbor. But we expect to have another in a few days.

Florence Corbett has returned to high school in Machias.

There are two cases of scarlet fever in town.

The Ladies' Aid recently gave an entertainment in the Grange hall and all the children went ashore to attend it.

The Hibiscus has landed our coal, and now to get it across the island is the next thing.

The Coast Guard is building us a new telephone line. We'll probably have good service now.

We hope to read more Monhegan items some time. They are very interesting to us.

Saddleback Ledge

Rather quiet here at the Ledge now. Visitors all gone and not much moving.

We are fishing a little, trying to get our winter's supply. Lobsters are scarce, and we have been trying our luck putting up crab meat.

Mr. Mathe has returned to the light and Almander Alley went to his home in Jonesport for a few days with his family.

The past month has been a poor one for sun baths here.

Hope Harry Smith likes his new quarters at Two Bush.

John "Red" Phillips visited the light Oct. 1, having dinner with us and looking over the light. He said he thought it a poor place for a real good flower garden.

Miss Virginia Oliver of Bath arrived here Thursday for a visit.

Mrs. Isaphene Stevens returned to her home in Lewiston last Saturday.

Miss Virginia Oliver and our daughter Ethel rowed to Popham Monday and had a very enjoyable time.

The keeper made a brief call at Marttown the past week.

We hear plenty of mosquitoes around here and will surely appreciate it when they leave.

It is good to hear that Keeper H. I. Hutchins of Boon Island Light, who is confined in the Marine Hospital at Portland, is improving in health, and we all hope he will soon be able to join his family in the new home.

September has surely been a bad month here and the signal used more than the past two months altogether, and some good weather will be greatly appreciated.

The frost has not appeared here yet and we are enjoying flowers from the garden, dahlias and roses, the gladiolus having gone by this past week.

Our red rambler was very beautiful this year, Emma.

Miss Virginia Oliver has returned to her home in Bath after spending part of the week here at the Light.

Clifton Morong, son of Keeper and Mrs. Morong of Popham Light, was a caller Wednesday.

Our daughter Ethel attended the social gathering at Phippsburg with a party of friends on Wednesday evening.

The keeper here is not blowing his horn in regards to size, nor quantity of potatoes.

Plenty of fog here nowadays.

Would like very much, also Mrs. Keene, to hear from Keeper and Mrs. Purinton of Nash Island. Capt. and Mrs. Keene were at one time stationed with them on Duck Island.

Not much here to write about. Hope all is well along the coast. Best regards to everyone.

Let's hear from some of the additional jig saw puzzles and singing.

A clever decoration for the table centerpiece were clotheless dolls made to represent foreign children. Another of these parties will be given in a few weeks, the date and place to be announced later, and proceeds to benefit the Congregational ladies' circle.

Portland Head

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Sterling and Mrs. Hilt were in Portland on business Friday of last week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Hilt and Mrs. Sterling made a dooryard call on Mrs. W. C. Dow in Portland last Saturday.

A. W. Hathorn of St. George arrived here Wednesday.

Mrs. F. O. Hilt and Mrs. R. T. Sterling recently called on Mrs. L. O. Goff in Westbrook.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Hilt of St. George were weekend guests of F. O. Hilt and family.

Mrs. R. T. Sterling, son Robert and nieces Elizabeth and Nancy, of Peaks Island enjoyed a motor ride Sunday.

Capt. and Mrs. C. G. Dyer of Monhegan were calling on the Hilt family Sunday. The Dyers are having a vacation.

Leon Sterling of New York city and his sister were guests Tuesday evening of the Sterlings.

Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Goff were callers at F. O. Hilt's Saturday.

F. O. Hilt and A. W. Hathorn started on a few days' trip Thursday morning. They expect to see the high lights in Montreal, Toronto and other cities in Canada.

As we write Oct. 5 it looks very much like another storm. The waters are kicking up a wee bit and seem to grow angry as neotonic approaches and it looks like rain.

Perkins Island

We are wondering if Virgie understood that it was the red rose bush and it has blossomed for the third time this year.

Our daughter Ethel returned to the Light Thursday, but has been invited to extend her stay, so we expect she will be leaving us again soon for a short time.

Miss Virginia Oliver of Bath arrived here Thursday for a visit.

of Warren and Miss Irene Young of Thomaston.

From the gardens of Mrs. Nettie Vinal came the flowers, mostly dahlias which decorated the hall very prettily in their brilliant fall colorings with the added brightness of red berries and the colored maple leaves, all tastefully arranged in bank formation upon the stage, and a fitting background for the bright faces of the young people who took part.

Members of the club and the committee feel very much indebted to the young people of Warren for giving of their talent that evening, and also to those who came from out of town, pupils of the Elsie Allen Corner School of the Dance in Thomaston, who gave of their time and accomplishments so willingly for the enjoyment of all who attended. Following the meeting hot chocolate and cookies were served by the hostesses of the club for the evening.

SWAN'S ISLAND

Mr. and Mrs. William Morrison and daughters Eleanor and Maxine of Presque Isle have recently been guests of Mrs. Morrison's mother Mrs. Flora Smith.

The Methodist Ladies' Aid met last week at the home of Mrs. Judson Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Elden Colbath are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son Monday at Knox Hospital, Rockland.

The dance in Red Men's hall Monday evening was well attended. Music was furnished by the Swan's Island Boys' Orchestra. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Lilla Moulden.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Herrick are making preparations to move to the mainland. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Sinclair will accompany them.

Mrs. Isaac Stinson is visiting her son and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Basil Stinson in Rockland.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Staples on the birth of a son, at Tremont.

THE THOMASTON NATIONAL'S STORY

Oldest Banking Institution In Knox County Has Made Splendid Record—It Has a Modern Home

Few towns or cities of New England can compare with Thomaston in the general excellence and community satisfaction in the local banking situation. Since its opening back in the distant past of 1825 the Thomaston National Bank, oldest banking institution in Knox County, has had a record of consistent honorable service and unquestionable integrity. During the unprecedented bank crisis of last year the Thomaston National Bank never wavered in their bank. President Elliot and his officers and directors made themselves available to depositors at all times and kept the group fully informed on all developments.

This faith was amply supported by the exceptionally fine manner in which the institution came through the ordeal. Under Federal direction the bank in common with others, was carefully examined and was so sound that the old bank was kept intact with only a reorganization of its capital structure. It was a remarkable and most gratifying condition reported by stock canvassers who found on every hand a heartening spirit of confidence on the part of depositors and a universal desire to do their part.

Richard O. Elliot was made president of the Thomaston National at the time of its merger with the Georges National in September, 1931. He has associated with him Frank D. Elliot as executive vice president, R. E. Dunn as vice president, L. S. Levensaller as cashier and Charles M. Starrett, assistant cashier. The directors include R. O. and F. D. Elliot, R. E. Dunn, Levi Seavey, Elmus E. Morse and Henry McDonald.

The new set-up of the capital structure under the reorganization of June 23, 1933 shows capital, $100,000; surplus $25,000; preferred stock, $50,000. (an emergency issue to be retired as soon as possible) and undivided profits, $15,512. Since June 23 there has been a decided growth and upward trend reflecting depositor optimism in the bank and the future. Commercial deposits have more than doubled and with savings reach a total of $1,037,688.

A new branch is the trust department with Frank D. Elliot as Trust Officer. The bank is empowered to act as executor, administrator, guardian etc. Much use is found for this department by persons who have been named as executors of wills or appointed administrators of estates and who are too busy to attend to details of the work involved. For a small fee this work is attended to with most painstaking care and responsibility.

The Thomaston National conducts a complete banking service—savings accounts, checking accounts, discounting, collection department, American Express travelers' checks and Christmas Club. Its Safety Deposit boxes, giving complete protection against fire, theft and disaster are available at as low as $3 annually.

The present banking rooms are equipped in the most up-to-date manner, being finished in American walnut with walnut paneled dados throughout the main banking room, conference room, directors' room, officers' space and safe deposit department.

The plaster walls above the dados in these rooms are painted in two tones and finished in colors that pleasingly blend with the furnishings and hangings.

The officers' rail, counter front and dado in the public space are of rose tawernelle marble with black and gold base.

The grille work around safe deposit department and counter screen with concealed trough reflectors located under walnut shelf above the base of counter grille. Below this working counter top there are drawers, cupboards, shelving and knee spaces for the use of clerks.

The floors of working space, machine room, conference rooms, and coupon booths are covered with Jaspé battleship linoleum cemented in place. The floors of the public space, officers' space, conference room and safe deposit department are covered with rubber tile flooring cemented in place.

The directors' room, which is located at the rear of the safe deposit department, has a finished floor of oak.

The safe deposit vault is of reinforced concrete with floors, walls and roof 18 inches thick, reinforced with railroad iron. The interior of vault is lined with half-inch thick steel plates, the floor plates being covered with rubber tile. The interior of this vault has two compartments separated with polished steel grills with grille door.

The smaller compartment contains the 300 bank security boxes. The larger compartment is equipped with nests of polished steel safe deposit boxes for the use of the bank's customers. These compartments are separated from the safe deposit lobby by a polished steel grille door, and a 12-inch solid steel Mosler Safe Co.'s door, this door being visible at all times from the front of the bank. This entire vault and door are electrically protected and connected with vault alarm over front of bank.

The old vault, which has successfully withstood the assaults of time, and in which have been stored cash which would make a princely fortune even in these days of dazzling figures, has not been demolished, but will be used as a storeroom and for such extra uses as the future may give rise to. The vault is a good one, but when it was installed the owners of the bank, wise in their day and generation, did not foresee how nearly obsolete it would become in the period when the bank had assumed the importance of a city institution.

Looking Backward
The story of The Thomaston National Bank begins back in 1825 when the institution was opened in an ancient granite building which stood on the site of the present quarters.

It was torn down to make way for the brick block erected by Capt. Charles Stimpson in 1874. The Thomaston National Bank owned and still owns two-thirds of the structure, the remaining third now being the property of Elbridge K. Winchenbach, and occupied by the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co.

The bank has been particularly fortunate in having existed all these years without suffering losses from fire or burglars. The wisdom and energy of the men who have handled the destinies of this bank through the decades past speaks for Sharing honors with Searsport as Maine's most beautiful town, has an interesting historic background to enhance its present charm. Stately homes set well back from wide, cool elm arched streets set Thomaston apart as an ideal residential town. Here is found the famous Knox Mansion, museum of rare historical gems of the Revolutionary period, surrounded within easy driving distance by innumerable spots of Revolutionary and colonial significance. Too, modern Thomaston presents an active business aspect including within its corporate limits the great $4,000,000 mill of the Lawrence Portland Cement Co.

THOMASTON

ST. GEORGE

Rich in tradition and charming old day folk lore is St. George, most historic of Knox County's towns. Every foot of its fertile fields or rugged shore is hallowed ground, scene of some happenstance of tragedy or humor in days long passed. The present day St. George, comprising a group of prosperous hamlets centered about historic Tenant's Harbor, though smaller by far in population than a half century ago is rich in natural resources leading to prosperity, paving on a large scale agriculture, fisheries and many beautiful summer estates.

Mr. Studley invites the public to inspect the interesting window which has installed in honor of this great Economy Paint and Brush Week. A visit into the store bears out the promise of the window where many remarkable bargains may be obtained. A $2.50 four-inch pair brush will be given free next week with every six-gallon house job.

A California mother was away on a visit. The father who was from home daily until five, discovered that their two boys had not eaten lunch at the house for several days. On questioning them he learned that they had their mid-day meal at the lunchroom for the unemployed.

"But, Johnny, you mustn't do that," he admonished. "Your father isn't unemployed. There's always plenty of luncheon for you at home."

"But, dad, it's perfectly all right. We worked for it," was the reply. "After lunch we helped 'em wash the dishes."

When a woman motorist was called upon to stop, she asked indignantly, "What do you want with me?"

"You were traveling at 40 miles an hour," answered the officer.

"Forty miles an hour? Why, I haven't been out an hour," said the woman.

"Go ahead," said the officer. "That's a new one on me."
